HAL says it got the land from Maharaja of Mysore, but BBMP says it is public property

The tussle between HAL and BBMP over the land for BBMP's signal-free corridor has resulted in a war of words.

In response to the Bangalore Mirror story earlier this week on HAL demanding that BBMP develop a road in exchange for its land, HAL released an official statement saying, "HAL did request BBMP to clarify the concept of the signal-free corridor as it felt that, in this particular case, the concept needs to be reviewed. Also, the township for HAL employees is on one side of the road while the factory and the offices are on both sides of the road. BBMP needs to give details on how the movement of people would be affected."
